
What makes a good leader in education sector?

Mohamed Siddeek Yoosuf

Management Consultant, London, UK

Keywords

Leadership traits, leadership development, education sector

Abstract

Many organisations today lack in adequate number of globally competent leaders of high calibre and quality and they are seeking such leaders to lead various fields including education. Therefore it becomes important to develop potential successful leaders to fulfill the requirements of education sector today. In this context, it will be very useful to know the factors that influence development of potential good leaders. Therefore, this paper is aimed at briefly describing various theories and arguments on the factors that influence development of a leader.
